

When two states are independent, they are both kept around
This could happen if one participant was offline at some point

Eventually, someone will overwrite the values with a single one
The logical clock tells us wether this is intended or not

